ALL FIRST PREMIUMS.

Awarded to the Union Sewing Machine. The Verdict of the World's Exposition Confirmed by the Judges of the Omaha Fair.

VICTORY PERCHES ON THE BANNER OF THE UNION SEWING MACHINE.

ALL FIRST PREMIUMS FOR WORK DONE ON THE SEWING MACHINE, WERE AWARDED TO THE UNION. The specimens of work for which the premiums were awarded, speak for themselves. In decorative art, this company exhibited samples of embroidery that baffled the skill of connoisseurs to distinguish from hand work. Flowers of all descriptions, roses and pansies, sun flowers, and lilies so delicately shaded that nature would almost suffer by comparison. Certainly their exhibit in this class deserved the first premium.

RUFFLING, PUFFING, TUCKING, &c. In this class of fine work the Union made a fine exhibit and received the first premium also. The sample entered for premium was an infant's robe that excited the admiration of the ladies more than any other specimen in the whole sewing machine department. It consisted of exquisite designs of embroidery, puffing and tucking that seemed like the work of fairy fingers, and was voted by all Mothers as almost too good for even the most precious of precious babies.

400 COTTON THREAD. A sewing machine that will make a perfect stitch sewing backward and forward, with No. 400 cotton thread, must be perfectly adjusted, and no other argument need be advanced to prove the perfect adjustment of this matchless machine than the simple statement that this beautiful robe, containing in the neighborhood of one hundred and fifty yards of stitching, was made with 400 cotton thread without breaking a thread or skipping a stitch.

The ordinary seamstress using No. 100 cotton thread, in very exceptional cases, can scarcely conceive of the fineness of the thread used in making this exquisite work, and we are at a loss for an illustration, unless it be the gossamer web, that decks our fields on a dewy morn and trembles beneath the weight of the sunbeams.

It is only fair to state that all samples exhibited as work of the Union were the product of Omaha talent, while those of their competitors entered for the same premiums were the work of experts imported from abroad.

The Union Sewing Machine backed by Mr. Smith and his efficient assistants made a combination that is hard to beat, at least that is the verdict awarded at the Omaha Fair.

Call and see samples of work at 1009 Howard street.

LARMON P. PRUYN.

Over 30 Different Vehicles on Exhibition.

There were many creditable displays of buggies, phaetons, etc., at the fair, but the large and varied exhibition of L. P. Pruyne leads all of them. It occupied a whole building and in arrangement and elegance was unexcelled on the grounds. Just inside the front door was a life size dummy horse attached to an elegant turnout. To the left of this is a nice collection of single and double sleighs, made by the Omaha Carriage and Sleigh company, whose factory is in operation at South Omaha. Mr. Pruyne says that the new factory is overrun with orders and, when we remember that this institution is not six months old its future must be bright. Mr. Pruyne is agent for the Columbus buggies, the Amosbury, Mass., buggies and the Hookins buggies. Of the latter he has sold fifteen car loads during the present year. Among his elegant array of vehicles you can find any style you may wish. The canopy top, pony phaetons, basket phaetons, and springs and side bars, family carriages, sulkeys, platform spring wagons, in fact anything usually kept in the carriage, sleigh or buggy line. The display of robes was exceedingly fine. There were plush robes, wolf robes, fur robes, and robes and wraps of all colors and styles. This building was the center of attraction for goods of this character on the grounds. It is useless to multiply words in describing a business such as Mr. Pruyne has built up, for his known reputation as a business man is a guarantee that whatever he attempts will be a success, and when such a man has goods of the merit and excellence of those manufactured and handled by Mr. Pruyne the public are not slow to secure the benefits sure to accrue to them. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," they say. When you want anything in the carriage line see Pruyne before you buy. His headquarters are at Twenty-third and Iard streets, where you will receive gentlemanly treatment.

The Rinehart Collins Display.

To the right as you entered the south door of the art hall on the fair grounds, was a display of photographic art and crayon drawings that arrested the attention of everybody. It embraced photographs of all sizes and kinds, every one of which was a gem. Mr. Rinehart secured the expression of his subjects in a happy manner, giving a naturalness rarely found in such work. His pictures are finished in a most beautiful manner. That his display eclipsed all competitors goes without saying, for he secured the first premium for the finest collection of photographs. Mr. Collins, the crayon artist, is an artist of ability and promise. His portraits are strikingly natural and true to life. In feature expression and shading the work done by him is first class, a statement agreed to by the committee who granted him the first premium on his work. Mr. Collins has his office with Mr. Rinehart, but will soon take up elegant quarters in the new Paxton building.

Prize Jerseys.

The Jerseyville stock farm herd, Graham P. Browne, proprietor, comes out victorious again this fall, winning the highest honors on his noted herd. Duke of Douglas takes the sweepstakes; the beautiful cow, "For-get-Me-Not," takes sweepstakes for best Jersey cow. The fine bull, Prince, one year old and under two, carries off first premium. First premium on the handsome young bull, "Romeo." Juliet came in for a second premium. Gazelle's Patsy, a model cow, wins second. Maid Mildred, a perfect dear, wins second. The dashing young beauty, Helen M., gallops out of the ring with the highest honors of the day in her class; Sara follows with second. The competition was very strong among the Jerseys, the exhibit of Jerseys being the largest ever made here, and Mr. B. feels proud of his success in the face of such competition. His prizes at the Omaha county fair number twenty-five. He had on exhibition thirty-five as choice Jerseys as were ever shown in Nebraska, and his success is due to a long and continued study of this noble breed, which combine more good qualities than any other. He starts for the state fair to-day.

The Great Doris & Colvin's Colossal Shows.

Doris & Colvin's colossal show combined will positively exhibit at Omaha on Thursday, September 23 and Council Bluffs 23d. The big show in addition to its countless other wonders will introduce here the realistic battle of Little Big Horn and the death of General Custer. The magnificent mock battle will be participated in by real Indians, ex-regulars and U. S. scouts, and will be found a graphic portrayal of that celebrated historic scene. The whole battle will be fully reproduced, the ambuscade, the attack; the repulse; the defeat and the death of Hero Custer at Little Big Horn. For the first time in this country will be introduced the great 39 horses act consisting of riding and driving thirty splendid dashing horses around the quarter-of-a-mile race track at one time. The Roman standing, chariot and vaulting races have long been so often written up and drowned with praise that it is needless for us to say more. They will be seen in all their fire and glory. The modern running and trotting races, as well as the hurdle and steeple chases, will be given in like manner. The great "Wild West" will be given in all its grandeur, the bloodless bull-fighting and mail coach robbery, as well as the shooting by Captain Stubbs, will be given daily and in regular style. Don't forget the date, Thursday, Sept. 23, and Council Bluffs, 23d.

St. Joseph's Catholic church will be dedicated to-day. It is located on the corner of Ninth and Center streets. The members of the A. O. H. who are to take part in the procession are requested to meet at their hall promptly at 9 o'clock to-day.

A Hotel Change.

The Norris hotel at Sixteenth and Webster has changed hands and will hereafter be known as the Hotel Esmond, splendidly located, well furnished, and now in the hands of experienced hotel men, it will be found a comfortable home for families and a cheerful stopping place for the traveling public. The table service will be improved, the building is soon to be enlarged and the management is determined to make the Esmond first-class.

TAKE SUNDAY DINNER at Cafe Esmond, 630 North Sixteenth street.

Every Premium Secured.

The Omaha Business College scooped in every premium offered at the fair. Best display. Best pen drawing. Original work and also in plain penmanship. The display was most creditable. The Rohrbach Bros. never take a back seat. They show what they can do by executing work before the visitor. This college made a most creditable showing at the fair, a fact attested by the verdict of the committee. The Omaha Commercial college is one of the best in the west.

YOUTH'S INSTRUCTORS.

A List of Those Who Will Teach in the Leading Educational Institutions.

The public schools will reopen to-morrow. While the teachers and children have had a long and restful vacation, the board of education, the secretary and superintendent have been very busy making preparation for the 6,000 children who ask for admission. The old school houses have been put in order and several new ones have been erected. A few of the latter are not quite finished, but it is expected that in a few days everything will be in proper shape. The growth of the city, together with several resignations, has necessitated the employment of nearly fifty new teachers. Among these are many who are possessed of unusual ability. The following are the assignments of the new and old instructors for the next year:

Miss K. T. Lyman, A. B., Vassar college, seventh year in the school, natural science and Latin.

Miss V. B. Gilbert, A. B., Vassar college, fifth year in the school, higher English.

Mrs. Emma Doherty, graduate of St. Mary's hall, Burlington, N. J., thirteen years in the school, art and conchology.

Miss Margaret E. Wallace, late head of the music department, St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, N. J., head of music.

Sig. Eledoro de Campi, vocal music.

Miss E. Est. Rockman, late of London, England, instrumental music.

Miss E. M. Jewett, late in charge of the art and modern language department in St. Mary's Hall Knoxville, art and modern language.

Mrs. S. H. Windsor, thirteenth year in the school, head of the house.

Mrs. A. E. Ross and Miss Emily Nunally, assistant matrons.

Miss D. Wool, graduate of Brownell Hall, sixth year in the school, preparatory.

Miss Alta May Royce, graduate of Brownell Hall, mathematics and English.

The fifth year of this institution is to open on Wednesday, the 14th. Examination for admission at 9 a. m. Dr. Harsha, the president, reports the prospects as good for an increased attendance over former years.

CREIGHTON COLLEGE.

Classes were resumed at Creighton college on Monday, September 5. The president was well pleased with the attendance during the past week, which was excellent, notwithstanding the attractions presented by the fair, the Grand Army encampment and other displays.

There has been very little change in the faculty this year. The president, Rev. M. P. Dowling, S. J., has secured the services of Rev. Francis Hillman, S. J., as vice president and prefect of studies. Father Hillman is well known in the city, having been connected for several years with the Holy Family church.

Prof. James Meloy, S. J., formerly of this college, has received an appointment in St. Louis university.

Rev. James J. O'Meara, S. J., occupies the position he has filled for three years past.

Prof. John J. Donohoe, S. J., teaches the first year.

Prof. James Conohan and Francis Mara teach the second and third years, respectively.

Rev. Joseph Rigge is still interested in scientific work.

Prof. T. T. Downey and William R. O'Shaughnessy take charge of the preparatory department.

The magnificent stone church now being erected on the college grounds is progressing rapidly. In about a week it will be so far advanced as to allow the roofing to begin.

A Hotel Change.

The Norris hotel at Sixteenth and Webster has changed hands and will hereafter be known as the Hotel Esmond, splendidly located, well furnished, and now in the hands of experienced hotel men, it will be found a comfortable home for families and a cheerful stopping place for the traveling public. The table service will be improved, the building is soon to be enlarged and the management is determined to make the Esmond first-class.

TAKE SUNDAY DINNER at Cafe Esmond, 630 North Sixteenth street.

In Memoriam.

In the death of Peter Paulsen, of this city, whose funeral occurred in this city on Sunday last, his many friends deplore the loss of a man of sterling worth. For the past eighteen years he was in the employ of Milton Rogers & Sons, and his honesty and fidelity to every trust during that long period won for his memory words of kindly commendation from his employers. As a father and husband he was kind and indulgent and in every capacity in which he ever acted he performed every duty assigned him faithfully and well. His widow desires the expression of her heartfelt thanks to the many friends and acquaintances whose kindly offices in her hour of distress helped so much to lighten her affliction.

The Esmond Hotel.

The Norris hotel, corner Sixteenth and Webster streets, during the last week passed into the hands of a new management. Its name has been changed to that of the Hotel Esmond. L. E. Corby, the real estate dealer of Omaha, has become its proprietor, and E. L. Danforth, formerly of the Ardmore hotel in Minneapolis, its manager. It will be run on both the American and European plans, and its new management is a guarantee that it will become one of the leading hotels of the city. It will be raised an additional story, and several changes are contemplated in its interior, all tending to the better accommodation of its permanent guests and the traveling public.

The Posters and Their Hats.

The new police helmets arrived yesterday and to-morrow the coppers will step forth in their new headgear. The hats are very becoming and will give the force more of a metropolitan appearance. They are the same as those used in New York and St. Louis. They are covered with navy blue cloth and have the usual visor before and behind. On the front is a silver wreath inclosing an arch, on which is inscribed the number or rank of the officer.

Horses For Sale.

20 extra fine young horses, 4 years old, weighing from 900 to 1,000, for sale very cheap, $15 to $100 each. Apply at Medona institute, 13th and Capitol ave.
